

Who will be lucky this time?

Who will be lucky this time and get a share of the EU budget?

With the negotiations about the next multiannual financial framework starting next year, LYMEC hopes you will set the right priorities. Research, education and infrastructure should be areas into which money flows, not agriculture or globalization funds.

At the same time, the EU budget should not be raised in overall terms, as every cent spent by politicians is one less cent in the pockets of citizens. Even worse, it may result in sovereign debt being issued, thus putting a huge burden on the shoulders of coming generations.

LYMEC wishes you a calm and peaceful holiday season, as well as a happy new year. Once you return to office in 2012, let's work together for a frugal budget that spends as little as possible while setting the right priorities!
